Thanksgiving Greetings

As we are approaching Thanksgiving, it is good to ponder about how we are blessed living in the Philadelphia area. Other regions of the world were ravaged by natural catastrophes this year—such as the Indian Ocean tsunami, hurricanes, floods, etc.—and others suffered man-made catastrophes. Furthermore, the weather has been very good to us this fall, -also the best season in life... Hence, I feel that we, at the Society, have much to be thankful for.

In response to the initiative started by Frank Genieser early this spring, approximately 100 members whose membership had lapsed during the past two years pledged to join the Society again. Others are still “sitting on the fence.”

I encourage one and all to stop by and visit us during the Advent season, or whenever you come to the city, and see for yourself what progress has been made in the past five months. (In fact, I may be tempted to phone you before too long, in order to see where you stand vis-à-vis the Society).

Likewise, our call for support in sprucing up our premises has received a generous response. As of this writing, approximately $15,000 has been received, including a most-generous gift of $3,000 from the Women’s Auxiliary. A check for that amount was handed to me by Brigitte Masci during our Stiftungsfest celebration, along with an additional $2,000 to be used for general operations purposes. Many thanks indeed! A Bit of History

At a time when so many German Society volunteers are moving about the building in a flurry to clean, paint, drill, organize, answer phones and open doors, one person has been sitting at a table since early July, rarely moving at all. The reason for this seeming inactivity is that I am writing the history of the German Society from 1764 to the present. This project is funded by the German Historical Institute (GHI) in Washington D.C., an organization dedicated to German-American relations and supported by the German government. My work will culminate in a 150-page scholarly manuscript and together with Kevin Oystovich’s work on the holdings of the Joseph Horner Memorial Library (Neuer PA Staatsbote, Summer, 2005) will be published by the GHI by late 2006.

The German Society and its library are not new to me, since I did some research here on 18th-century German-speakers in Pennsylvania in the fall of 2001 as part of a dissertation fellowship at the University of Pennsylvania. I received my Ph.D. from the University of California, Irvine in 2003 and have been an Assistant Professor at the California State University, Los Angeles since then. The research grant from the GHI allowed me to leave my teaching duties in California for the 2005/6 academic year, and I am enjoying my time at the Society and in Philadelphia tremendously. Every day I discover new, fascinating aspects of GSP history, and I continue to be amazed at the wealth of unique historical sources not only in the library, but the attic rooms, and even the basement. While my project will highlight the importance of the German Society in Philadelphia, I am also discovering many more individual stories of German Society leaders, members and of those who benefited from Society’s benevolence.

Overall, it is clear that the German Society, founded as a voluntary association, has experienced many moments of crisis and change throughout its long history. The Society has survived as a viable and important organization, because in every generation a small group of extremely dedicated people revitalized the Society and cared for its building and valuable contents. For those of you currently involved in cleaning, scraping, painting and repairing, please know that earlier generations of GSP volunteers did the same.

Although we often think of the past as a different story. For example, the 1880s are generally considered to be among...
And those of you who have recently come to an event at the Society, could not have missed the physical changes to our building, resulting from the devoted efforts of a handful of dedicated people spending numerous hours over the past three months washing, scraping and painting doors, fences, and windows.

The attendance of our expanded Stiftungsfest celebrations, including the Schlacht- and Bierfest, was higher than last year, and so has been the interest in the Friday Film Fests, the Wister Concert Series, and other established programs.

In addition, we have introduced a St. Martin’s Day Parade to take place on November 11th and a European Wine Tasting Seminar on December 4th following our next Town Hall Meeting which you are encouraged to attend.

We are also planning to hold dance lessons (both of a Latin and Ballroom type) during the winter months so that you can even more enjoy future social gatherings at the Society.

And, last but not least, I am happy to report that the Christmas Bazaar run by the Women’s Auxiliary, which has long been a Society tradition, is returning this year. It will take place on Saturday, December 3rd. Please be sure to visit.

Let me conclude by thanking you for sticking with us during the difficult period of the past.

I wish you all the best for the upcoming holiday season—Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Chanukah. Enjoy it with your family and friends.

Mit freundlichen Grüssen,

Hardy von Auenmueller

White Seminar

You have laughed, listened, danced, sung, eaten and drank at the Society. Well, beginning this fall, you’ll also be able to sniff, swirl and swallow. We are launching the European Wine School as an educational outreach to the whole Philadelphia community, with exciting programs that focus on wine, beer and food.

What makes this possible is our having secured the services of Dr. Lynn Hoffman. Lynn is an author of fiction, and a writer about wine who has been turning people on to the joys of good food and drink for more than twenty years. He’s the author of a new college textbook about wine (yes, they have things like that these days) and a former professor of food and wine (how do you get a job like that?) at Drexel University.

Our first program will be an introduction to wine tasting to be held in the Ratskeller on Sunday, December 4th at 5:00pm after the Town Hall Meeting. The purpose of this session is to:

► sharpen your taste buds,
► take the mystery out of the rituals associated with wine,
► introduce you to a few really wonderful wines that might have escaped your notice,
► have a really good time.

If you’re already an experienced wine lover, you can look forward to in-depth tastings that concentrate on Italy—one tasting each for Lombardy, Piedmont and the Veneto, the latter French bargain, the Austrian wide miracle, the Mosel-Saar-Ruwer, and many other regions and topics. In the spring, we will also be launching the European Wine Certificate course—a series of ten professional level classes that will lead to the awarding of a Fundamental Certificate in Wine. Be sure to watch for our beer classes too... the first is planned for late January.

For further information e-mail the Language Program Coordinator, Michael Heinsdorf, at language@germansociety.org or call 215-627-2332.

Expansion of our language program is a high priority for us in the coming months, since we have the capacity to handle more students in our classes. We expect to attract new students from various target groups, such as music and art schools, middle managers of large, mid-sized and smaller companies, among others.

If you, members of your families, friends or colleagues have thought about enrolling in a German language course, now would be a good time to consider what we have to offer.

New courses in Business German are planned. These will include cultural awareness training oriented towards the business environment. To start this program, a volunteer to plan, pilot and help market it will be needed.

Also, we believe there will be an opportunity to market specialized support services to German expatriates who have recently relocated to the Philadelphia area. Here, too, a volunteer is requested to step forward.

Please call our office (215-627-2332) and talk with Sharan or me.

Walsh-Silva Wedding

It was almost the tenth anniversary of the day we met. So, on July 1st I got down on one knee and proposed my intentions.

Andrea is brilliant at the mechanics of events and planning. Her first miracle was finding the German Society. Hardy von Auenmueller started our tour in the grand ballroom, an impressive performance space forty feet wide and seventy feet deep, with plenty of areas for tables, dancing, a bar and food. Mostly though we loved the aesthetics of the space; a full wall of arched windows, colonnades running up the walls and ornate brass chandeliers hanging overhead.

Heading upstairs along a carved wooden staircase, we found the icing on the cake—the Library. A richly toned room, graceful and beautiful, we made our way through bookshelves, lined with marble busts and sculptures, topped elegantly with a wooden balcony. Everything leading to the podium at the front, which immediately brought to mind the purpose we had for the space. We loved the character, the art and elegance, and sense of importance inherent to the building.

The German Society offered everything we were looking for. In Andrea’s eyes I could see we had found a home for our event. And we did; it went off without a hitch on September 3rd. 2005. We had an incredible day, a beautiful event and danced until midnight in the best of company. Many thanks to all the folks at the German Society! —Nicholas Silva & Andrea Walsh the most vibrant years in GSP history, after all, the Society moved to its Spring Garden location in 1888. However, Society records reveal that during that decade very few members attended quarterly meetings, voted in annual board elections, and more than half of those nominated for offices, declined to serve.

Moving closer to the present, in the late 1960s, membership had fallen to below 300 and due to the dramatic decline of the stock market in 1973/4, the Society’s investment portfolio lost 35% of its value in one year. In addition, the Society had a substantial deficit every year; yet Society members never lost the will to pull through.

As you might be able to tell from reading this, or for those of you whom I have had the pleasure to meet in person, I am really excited about learning and teaching German. The Society, the building, the devoted efforts of a handful of dedicated people secured the services of Andrea Walsh. Walsh-Silva.
The orchestra also indulged in an "Arrangement of Bruckner’s colorful and emotional symphonic-length String Quintet in F Major. Particularly delightful, the 23-year-old soloist, Arabella Steinbacher from Munich won the hearts of the audience. This rising star, under the mentoring of Anne-Sophie Mutter, matched the orchestral colors well, and convinced with jousiness and the confidence gained from many performances in the world’s great concert halls. She also owed the audience with an extremely demanding encore from Eugen Ysaÿe’s Sonata No. 2. The ardent musicality of that evening’s artists surely whetted the appetite for the remaining season gams.

—Dr. Guido Houben

After the round-robin, the remaining 16 teams play home and away in elimination rounds.

Lastly, in the Bundesliga Pokal, two rounds have been completed. Only 10 first division teams are still left; however, the lack of the draw means that at least four more will fall in the next round.

All these happenings should create extra interest and excitement in upcoming games. If you are interested in being added to my e-mail distribution list, please contact me at guismon@worldnet.att.net.

And by all means, invite other soccer fans that might not be GSP members.

So please stay tuned and to all “Hipp, Hopp, Hurrah”.

My Middle Name is Israel

by Hans Ludwig Riess

(ISBN# 1588209660)

“My Middle Name is Israel” sind die Erinnerungen von Hans Ludwig Riess. Sohn einer assimilierten deutschen jüdischen Familie, an sein Leben im Vorkriegs-Berlin, an seine und seiner Eltern Flucht aus Deutschland und ihre daraus resultierenden Erfahrungen als Flüchtlinge in dem im kriegsbedingten China.

Die besonders lesenswerten Passagen findet man gleich am Anfang des Buches, in denen Mr. Riess sein Leben in Berlin von seiner Geburt im Jahre 1921 bis zu seiner Flucht, 18 Jahre später, schildert; seine Kindheit und das Eröffnen und Testen, seine und seiner Eltern unglaubliches Erschrecken über die Ereignisse der Hitler machtübernahme folgten. Die Beschreibungen wecken die Erinnerung an eine Metropole die damals als die vitalste und schönste Hauptstadt Europas galt. Ich wurde an den Film “Cabaret” erinnert, der die aufregende und dekadente Atmosphäre der Stadt kurz vor Ausbruch des Krieges so hervorragend eingefangen hat. Ebenso ist es Mr. Riess gelungen, ein Stück Berlin aus seiner Erinnerung wieder auferstehen zu lassen. Durch die dunklen Wolken, die die Nazidiktatur seit 1933 über die jüdischen Berliner in immer bedrohlicherer Weise heraufziehen lässt, weiss Mr. Riess einige Sonnenstrahlen durchbrechen zu lassen.

Auch das „Zweite Erwachsenwerden sowie sein und seine Kindheit und Atmung zu lassen. Durch die dunklen Wolken, die die Nazidiktatur seit 1933 über die jüdischen Berliner in immer bedrohlicherer Weise heraufziehen lässt, weiss Mr. Riess einige Sonnenstrahlen durchbrechen zu lassen.
